REEESNe is now accepting proposals from groups comprising students and/or faculty and staff of multiple member institutions for working group projects supporting intermural learning and professionalization in the 2023-24 academic year. To apply, please submit an email to ian.macmillen@yale.edu with the subject “2023 Student Working Group” and attach a single document with separate paragraphs addressing each of the following (note that these are the basic requirements for proposals submitted by June 20th – see below for additional requirements for questions 2 and 4 of proposals submitted later in the Summer):

1. What will be the focus of the working group, and why is this focus important?

2. What are the goals of the working group for Fall 2023 and Spring 2024, and how will you set about accomplishing them in fortnightly online meetings during each half of the academic year?

3. At what member institution and in what part of the academic year do you envision gathering in person, and upon what resources are you hoping to draw while there? (We may follow up with you about this to make sure that a plan is in place before awarding working group funding).

4. Who is involved so far, and how will you go about recruiting a total of at least 8 students by September 2023? (Please list the names, student/faculty/staff status, and institutional affiliations of all already-committed members representing 3 or more member institutions, and feel free to reach out if it would be helpful before you apply to talk through your plans and REEESNe’s potential to contribute to further recruitment.)

For proposals submitted between June 21st and August 1st: Please make sure that in your response to question 4 you provide a list of at least 8 committed students.

For proposals submitted between August 2nd and September 1st: Please make sure that in your response to question 4 you provide a list of at least 8 committed students; and please add to your response to question 2 a full syllabus for 10-12 online meetings in 2023-24.
